CALL BEFORE YOU DIG

DIAL 811 BEFORE YOU DIG FOR FREE DAMAGE PROTECTION

Today, more and more of the utility companies that supply homes with power, heat, water, telephone, sewer, gas and cable television service are delivering those services underground. It is also possible that these buried service lines are close to the surface, making digging on projects a dangerous endeavor. Fortunately, you can find out where public utility-owned lines are buried on properties by contacting 811 either by phone or online.

NC811 will notify utility companies of your excavation needs and those utilities will then have their professional locators come out to your project and mark their buried lines, free of charge.

Call by dialing 811 or submit your dig request online at www.nc811.org. It is recommended that you submit a dig request at least three business days in advance of beginning your digging. Avoid damaging utility lines and getting fined — call 811 before you dig.
